

“IT AIN’T OVER UNTIL GOD SAYS IT’S OVER”

While processing thoughts in my mind, and analyzing the events of the day, I begin to encourage myself with these words, “you are fearlessly blessed.” No white cane needed to navigate my journey. I can feed, dress, and bathe myself, hear the sounds of birds and crickets. Wealth is mine. Health is mine. Prosperity is mine. So I confess that I am fearlessly blessed.

In May 2015, I suffered a stroke. People say, “my stroke.” I say, “that stroke.” The right side of my body was afflicted. My face drooped and I drooled. My shoulder to my fingers had little usage, and my leg and foot had limited mobility.” I wanted to sing but words didn’t connect in my mind or throat. I couldn’t comb my hair, drive, or hold my grandchildren. My speech was altered and my confidence was broken.

The day before “that stroke,” I was an anointed key speaker at a Women’s Conference. They were rejuvenated, restored and ready to wage war against the devil. The anointing does not exempt you from the weapons of the enemy, but no weapon formed against you will prosper. The devil thought he had me. Things looked grim. It looked like I was in the finale scene of my life. There are great doors opened for you, but it seems like there are many adversaries (I Corinthians 16:9). Sickness, heart break, joblessness, just tired of being tired. Some victories have serious after shocks. God don’t see the bruises and scars from the storms of life, which are really just a set-back, for a stronger come back. He sees the blood of Jesus. He has an expected end for you (Jeremiah 29:11).

Jesus is the ultimate healer. He yearns for you to be healed of whatever has you down, whether it’s physical disease, emotional distress, or spiritual deficiency. God is in control. You can live again. Prophecy to your bones and your mind. Remember Ezekiel? Command it to do what God created it to do. Don’t give up. Don’t let go of your confidence (Heb. 10:35). Your confidence (faith) will activate the authority given to you by God to possess understanding of His plan for your life. You’re fearlessly blessed. Victory is yours. Jehovah Rapha means to mend; to cure; to repair; to make whole. Today, I am whole again. It ain’t over until God says it’s over.
